
Government Assisted Housing

Government housing assistance is available to low-income older persons through two programs; Public Housing and Section 8 Housing Choice Vouchers.

Public Housing

Low cost housing in multi-unit complexes that are available to low-income families, including the elderly and disabled. Tenants in this type of housing typically pay no more than 30% of their monthly income for rent.

Section 8 Housing Choice Vouchers

Allows very low-income families, the elderly and disabled to choose any housing that meets the requirements of the program.

Housing Commissions

Housing Commissions administer public housing within their communities. They have information about landlord/tenant issues and housing laws, although they do not provide legal advice. Some provide information about Section 8 vouchers and certificates if they are available within the community.
